being worked on. Maruti is keen to hold onto the lead as far as fuel efficiency is concerned.

The interiors are much more similar to the Baleno. They get a premium makeover though, with a large touchscreen infotainment display that works with both Android Auto and Apple CarPlay. The dashboard has a lot going too, like the fancy looking dials and steering wheel. To keep away from the tried and tested Swift Design ideas, Maruti has kept the instrument panel rectangular, the vents on the central console are wedge-shaped and the air-con system doesn't have rotary knobs either.

The black and beige upholstery is soothing to the eye, while the increased wheelbase offers more leg space for both the driver and the passengers in the front and the back. Rear passengers also get a second set of AC vents.

The Maruti Dzire has been launched and is priced between ₹5.45 - 9.41 lakh.
